

Frequently Asked Questions About Verified Accounts

What is a verified account?

Any account within the Discord server with the  role is a verified account. Verification establishes the authenticity of notable individuals within our community.

How do I get verified?

Accounts are verified occasionally, with a preference for verifying notable people within the community. We do not accept verification requests from the general community. If your account is eligible for verification, we may reach out to you in the future.

What are the benefits of being verified?

- Receive priority support from our community team and developers.
- Early access to new features, news, and testing sessions.
- Subject to fewer auto-moderation restrictions and priority moderation appeals.
- Verification establishes trust within the community.
- Have your voice heard! Verified accounts stand out from the rest of the community.

Can an account lose verification?

An account can lose verification status at any time without notice for a variety of reasons, including but not limited to:

- If you severely violate Roblox's Terms of Use, Community Standards, and our Community Guidelines.
- If your account becomes inactive.
- If we have security concerns regarding your account.
- If you're assisting or encouraging another person to violate Roblox's Terms of Use, Community Standards, and our Community Guidelines.

Any accounts of individuals associated with hateful conduct or coordinated harmful conduct (i.e., accounts that routinely post content that harasses or insults any individual or group, especially regarding protected characteristics) may be ineligible for account verification and receive punishment, regardless of where the infraction originated.